Protect, seal, secure and separate

Easy, hands-free access, and entrances that support meticulous hygiene and safety standards play a critical role in healthcare facilities.

Protection and access are key

To provide the best standard of care for your patients, and a safe environment for your staff and visitors, it's crucial that every door in your facility is suited to purpose. As needs differ from area to area, the right entrance solution is vital to aid access, support working processes and provide an effective barrier against the spread of contagions.

Touchless access ensures easy, hygienic access

With a wall-mounted touchless activation unit installed either side of an entrance, access is hygienic and hands-free. By simply sweeping a hand above the surface of the device, the door automatically opens without the need for contact or pressure.

Activation sensors are ideal for all-access entrances. As a pedestrian approaches the door, it will automatically open, without the need for hand or elbow contact to push a switch.
